Monday

Call to Worship

I call to you today, O God!

I know you hear my pleas.

I will put my faith in you.

I know you will soothe my sorrows and pains.

I call to you today, O God!

I know you are my hope.

I worship you today, O God, the one who hears my pleas.

Personal Reflection

Prayer

Holy one, God of all, I come to you today very aware of my brokenness and self-centered ways. My desire is to offer prayers and thanksgiving for the needs of all, everyone one. The truth is that I want to be more like the Psalmist and shouts “..pour out your anger on the nations that do not know you, and on the kingdoms that do not call on your name.” I throw in specific names just for good measure! Thank you, O God, for reminding me that I, too, am broken. I, too, cry out for forgiveness, and healing. You hear my cries. You forgive me. I know you desire that everyone be reconciled to you. Meet us, all of us, in our need, heal our failings. Amen.

Benediction

As we go about this day may our lives reflect God’s healing, love and light. Amen.
