Saturday

Call to Worship

I worship God today because people who are lost are being found!

I worship God today because God goes into the wilderness of our lives seeking us when we are lost.

I worship God today because every day I can experience God's forgiveness and joy – gifts that lead to new life!

Personal Reflection

Prayer

God, you are gracious and loving, but sometimes I find it difficult to put my trust in you. It is so easy to listen to news stories, and Facebook posts, and emails and see only violence, pain, destruction, distortions of truth. I don't have to watch or read much news to see signs of hopelessness and despair. I realize that too often I try to rely on my own strength, my own plans and devices rather than trusting in you and your love to sustain me. Forgive me. Help me turn to you when I feel lost and when things seem hopeless. Help me offer those burdens to you, the one who searches for me and finds me, and brings me home. May the faith and love that are evident in Jesus be evident in my life, too. Amen.

Benediction

I will go forth with the faith and love of Christ shining in my life.
Amen.
